Passion, Participation and Digital Projects

- Passion can be the secret item in the sauce of a digital project taking it from “good to great”
- How we developed a new site with material relating to First Nations, Métis, and Inuit peoples, found in Saskatchewan cultural and heritage collections.

Project in a Nutshell

- 4,000 descriptions and over 50,000 digitized archival and published items relating to First Nations, Métis, and Inuit peoples

Participation in a Nutshell

---

- More than 80 people contributed to the site
- 7 Archives and Libraries & Archeology Lab
  - City of Saskatoon Archives
  - Diefenbaker Canada Centre
  - Pahkisimon Nuye?áh Library System (Northern Saskatchewan Archives)
  - Saskatchewan Archives Board, Saskatoon Office
  - Saskatoon Public Library Local History Room
  - University of Saskatchewan Archives
  - University of Saskatchewan Library, Special Collections

Budget in a Nutshell

- Grand Total
  - $432,051.93
  - $189,854.82 in grants, res is in kind
- Timeline
  - Application Dec 2006
  - March 2007 - March 2008

Ingredients

- Past experience working with each other
- Clear vision
- Flexible and adaptable
- Listening
- Practice saying “yes”

Why “Our Legacy”?

- “kinanāskomitin: Our site name was given to us by a Cree researcher at the University of Saskatchewan Archives, who in turn was influenced by the late Chief Mary Ann Stoney, Little Pine First Nation. Chief Stoney was known for her commitment to Cree language curriculum development.”

Dene and Cree

- Although we recognize the numerous Indigenous languages spoken in Saskatchewan and across Canada, we have included Cree to honour this gift and Dene to honour our northern partners, Pahkisimon Nuye?áh Library System (Northern Saskatchewan Archives).

Physical description/extent	18 Slides; Colour
Historical note	Photographs of Lydia and Napthelie McKenzie and their daughter Jemima Charles on their trapline near Stanley Mission, taken by Lois Dalby of the Academic Education Branch of the Department of Northern Saskatchewan in 1974.
Scope and content	A set of 17 photographs of Lydia and Napthelie McKenzie and their daughter Jemima Charles on their trapline near Stanley Mission preparing the meat and hide of a bear shot by their son Malcolm McKenzie. -p01 to -p03: Lydia and Jemima and the boys skin the bear. -p04: The hide is hung over a pole set in the ground and Lydia fleshes it while Jemima holds it in place. -p05: Malcolm, the hunter, tries his hand at fleshing. -p06: Jemima continues with the fleshing. -p07: Jemima removes the fat and flesh from the inside of the hide. -p08: Some of the meat brought from the kill site. -p09: Lydia prepares the meat for smoking by cutting it into thin slices. -p10: The boys wash and clean the intestines. -p11: Some of the meat is boiled in a pot. -p12: Other meat is cooked in a frying pan for lunch. -p13: A bear chop is served up, along with moose pemmican. -p14 to -p15: Meat being smoked, along with some fish. -p16: All the meat must be cooked or smoked as it will not keep long in the summer. -p17: Lydia and Napthelie admire the stretched bear hide. -p18: This is the first bear their oldest son Malcolm has ever shot.

Things to Do Better

1. Make the content transparent and comparable as early as possible
  - Identify inconsistencies
2. Tap everyone's knowledge better
  - book scanner, IE Spell or Firefox 2 for spellcheck in form fields

3. Work with others to develop protocols.

Future Hopes and Dreams (June 2008)

- Receive lots feedback and continue to add entries
- See the site used in schools, colleges, and by the community
- Add more content by working with more archives, libraries, bands, cultural centres, and groups.

Already

- Passion is fueling
  - the promotion from pow wows to scholarly journals
  - the developer to suggest new ways (beta ideas)
  - word of mouth marketing

And fueling

- More grants and in-house work
  - publish the book
  - More records
  - Digitization grant approval pending
